

REGGIA DI CASERTA

press kit

The Reggia di Caserta (Royal Palace of Caserta) is an autonomous museum of the Ministry of Culture, recognized by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site. The Reggia di Caserta monumental complex includes the Royal Palace, the Royal Park, the WWF Bosco di San Silvestro Oasis and the Caroline Aqueduct.

THE ROYAL PALACE AND ITS COLLECTIONS

The extraordinary Royal Palace, commissioned by King Charles of Bourbon and designed by the architect Luigi Vanvitelli, is a monumental structure that occupies 47,000 square meters and rises over five floors.

The museum itinerary of the Royal Apartments can be reached by climbing the marvelous Royal Staircase which connects the Lower Vestibule to the upper one. The Upper Vestibule leads to the Royal Apartments, to the Palatine Chapel and then to the Queen's Apartments. The most majestic setting of the Royal Apartments is certainly the Throne Room, used for the reception of the prominent personalities of the time. The other nineteenth-century rooms that follow are also of great value, such as the bedroom of Joachim Murat, the bedroom of Francis II. In the eighteenth-century wing, the itinerary continues with the Rooms of the Seasons, the Boudoir of Maria Carolina, with the Palatine Library, the Picture Gallery and the Court Nativity scene, a great passion of the noble royal family.

To date, the itinerary is "contaminated" by the presence of artworks belonging to the Terrae Motus collection of Lucio Amelio, which boasts works by internationally renowned contemporary artists such as Josef Beuys, Andy Warhol, Keith Haring, Michelangelo Pistoletto, Mimmo Paladino, Mario Schifano, Gianni Pisani, Robert Mapplethorpe and Jannis Kounellis. At the end of the Royal Apartments tour, there is the Lucio Amelio Room, dedicated to the gallerist who inspired the Terrae Motus collection.

Since 1 March 2023, in the back rooms of the great Sala delle Guardie in the Royal Apartments, the Vanvitelli Rooms have been set up as part of the project "1773 -2023 Luigi Vanvitelli the Master and his heritage". On the occasion of the Vanvitelli celebrations - 250 years after the death of the great architect -, the permanent exhibition allows the public to understand the Master's personality in relation to his clients, to the project, to the realization and the grandeur of the challenging masterpiece. The material heritage on display - such as the wooden scale models of Antonio Rosz, the portraits of the architect, the project drawings - is integrated into a digital and technological story which emphasizes its exhibition power.

QUEEN'S APARTMENT

The Second Hall of the Queen's Apartment was recently inaugurated following the demolition of a mid-20th-century ceiling that had reduced the room's height to create an upper floor. This intervention is part of a broader project aimed at securing and consolidating the areas formerly assigned to the National School of Administration and the Italian Air Force, which were reassigned to the Reggia di Caserta Museum under the 2014 Commissioner's Plan.

COURT THEATRE

An extraordinary example of eighteenth-century theatrical architecture, it is structured with horseshoe-shaped stalls enriched by giant-order columns. The stage was set up so that it could open onto the Royal Park in case of scenic needs, such as the simulation of the Carthage fire during the representation of the abandoned Dido, the 1770 work by Pietro Metastasio. Great artists have trod the stage of the Vanvitellian theater over the centuries until today. Riccardo Muti, on stage with the Cherubini Orchestra in The last seven words of Christ on the cross by Joseph Haydn in January 2021, said: "This is a unique place ... Even the acoustics are extraordinary ... where the sounds are reproduced in a natural way. In this wonderful room the thrill of being immersed between history and beauty reappears".

GRAND GALLERY

Since 2024, the Reggia has opened the Gran Galleria to the public. The spaces were inaugurated by the President of the Italian Republic Sergio Mattarella on February 29, 2024. After major reconstruction and restoration work, the west wing of the Royal Palace has been returned to the public, which, in Luigi Vanvitelli's drawings, was intended as an internal connection between the King's apartment and that of the Queen. Very large spaces, approximately 1300 square meters, with internal heights of up to 16 meters, which offer opportunities for the staging of exhibitions and events of national and international importance.

CAROLINE AQUEDUCT

It was also conceived and designed by the architect Luigi Vanvitelli on commission from Charles of Bourbon to power the water features of the Royal Palace and the entire palace and to supply the surrounding area. The entire route of the aqueduct runs for a length of 38 km and is visible, in all its magnificence, for a stretch above ground about 10 kilometers from the Royal Palace, in the Valle di Maddaloni area. The bridge is an imposing tuff structure with three tiers of round arches that rises to a height of 60 meters and a length of about 500 meters.

ROYAL PARK AND THE ENGLISH GARDEN

The Green Museum, consisting of the Royal Park and the English Garden, which covers an area of 123 hectares, is the expression of a complex landscape vision. The Royal Park, designed by the genius of Vanvitelli, is a typical example of an Italian garden built with vast lawns, flower beds and lush water features. In fact, along the central axis there are large pools with fountains and waterfalls decorated with large sculptural groups that create a scenographic effect of great impact. The waterway culminates in the Torrione and the large waterfall. The water is transported by the Caroline Aqueduct.

In the lateral area of the lower part of the Royal Park, inside the Old Wood, there are the large artificial lake Peschiera, built and commissioned by Ferdinand IV to delight in small naval battles, and the Castelluccia, a place of games and entertainment for the little princes.

In the Old Wood, Michelangelo Pistoletto's Third Paradise installation was inaugurated in June 2025. This permanent creation, by one of the leading figures of Arte Povera, is composed of natural wood and historic stone materials, abandoned for decades and recovered in the Green Museum, uniting the memory of artifice with the vitality of nature. The installation is 25 meters long and 10 meters wide.

The English Garden, in the upper part of the Green Museum, was strongly desired by Maria Carolina of Habsburg, sister of Marie Antoinette of France. It is characterized by an apparent "natural" disorder of waterways, fake ruins, such as the Cryptoporticus in the Bagno di Venere which houses the statues from the Pompeii excavations and the Farnese collection, and the ruins of the Doric Temple. The English Garden has a rich and precious plant heritage. Numerous exotic specimens from all over the world were planted here.

Inside the English Garden, since 2024, the Graefer Greenhouses have been inaugurated, a project to recover the productive spaces of the English Garden. Since its origins, the English Garden has been an important center of botanical experimentation, known throughout Europe. Inside, in fact, there are two eighteenth-century greenhouses, to which the Serra Grande, designed in 1863, was added not far away. With the Graefer Greenhouses project, the structures have been the subject of careful restoration and subsequent reopening to the community. They preserve a magnificent botanical heritage and a permanent laboratory of sustainability. The plants, cultivated again, following the nineteenth-century catalogs, are an example of resilience, spontaneous beauty and the great regenerative capacity of Nature.

Halfway along the waterway is the former guardhouse of Ercole. This small farmhouse, originally intended to guard the Court's gardens, has now become a plant and gift shop, offering visitors a preview of what they will find at Le Serre di Graefer in the English Garden.

INITIATIVES

The Reggia di Caserta, in addition to being appreciated by the public for its historical and artistic value as a Royal Apartments and the Green Museum, has hosted countless initiatives of various kinds that have been met with great success. The Royal Palace of Caserta hosted the exhibition Frammenti di Paradiso. Gardens over time at the Royal Palace of Caserta from 1 July to 7 November 2022. About two hundred works including paintings, drawings, sculptures, herbals, books, art objects and contemporary interpretations as a story of the history of the garden through the centuries.

From 1 March to 15 July 2024, the photographic exhibition Visioni took place in the Gran Galleria with the exhibitions Attraversamenti by Luciano D'Inverno and Genius et Loci – La drammaturgia dello sguardo by Luciano Romano.

From 21 May to 20 July 2025, the Court Theatre hosted the exhibition Abisso, a site-specific project curated by Marina Guida and created by Per Barclay, which transformed the eighteenth-century theater into a reflective abyss by filling its floor with a black, oil-like fluid.

From 27 November to 1 September 2025, the Grand Gallery hosted the exhibition Metawork – Michelangelo Pistoletto at the Royal Palace of Caserta. The show took its title from the work Metawork – United Portraits, which, through an artificial intelligence program, recombines the photographic portraits of eight citizens of Cittadellarte, enabling the transition, central to Pistoletto's work since his Mirror Paintings, from the individual to the collective dimension.

In recent years, the Royal Palace of Caserta's collections have been enriched with new works, thanks to the restitution of items belonging to the royal collections by other museums and cultural institutions. The museum has also initiated a policy of acquiring works closely linked to the Royal Palace's artistic heritage. To tell this fascinating story of comings and goings and showcase the beauty of these new additions to the museum's collections, the exhibition Tutto Torna! New Acquisitions and Returns to the Collections of the Reggia di Caserta will be held in the rooms behind the Throne Room from October 22nd to December 8th, 2025.

From 20 December 2025 to 4 May 2026, the Gran Galleria hosted the exhibition Regine. Weavings of Culture and Diplomacy between Naples and Europe. Featuring more than 200 works—including paintings, ceremonial garments, accessories, furnishings, books and publications, musical instruments and photographs—the exhibition explored and reconstructed the world of the queens who contributed to the development, affirmation and dissemination of European culture: from Elisabeth Farnese to Maria Amalia of Saxony, from Maria Carolina of Austria-Lorraine to Caroline Murat, from Maria Sophie of Bavaria to the queens of the House of Savoy.

Until 30 November, the Gran Galleria hosts the exhibition Archetipi. Antonio Biasiucci alla Reggia di Caserta. The exhibition project pays tribute to one of the most original artists on the contemporary Italian scene. Through more than 300 photographs and installations, the visual narrative offers a reflection on the relationships between humankind, nature and memory, transforming fragments of past and present reality into universal symbols.
